1. Such anti-Communist resistance as has been developed in Bulgaria is now in a state of nearly complete collapse. The moment a group of anti-Communist partisans is reported in a given area, the Communists at once proceed to stamp them out.
2. The Communist authorities have organized special groups of provocateurs, to get the resisters to betray their existence. This is especially true in Ruse and the Dobruja area. The provocateurs try to get help from the civilian population. They also try, if possible, to make contact with the genuine anti-Communist partisans, if they possibly can. Some of the anti-Communist bands in Ruse and the Dobruja area have suffered severe losses in this way.
3. In spite of all this, some partisan activity continues, mainly against military motor trucks passing along the roads.
